

COUNCIL OF EUROPEAN MUNICIPALITIES AND REGIONS
CONSEIL DES COMMUNES ET REGIONS D'EUROPE

THE FUTURE OF RURAL COMMUNITIES IN EUROPE

CEMR Conference

9th November 2006
9.30 – 17.30

Venue:

Mission of Norway to the EU
rue Archimède, 17
1000 Brussels

Purpose of the conference:

As the preparations of the new structural funds and rural development operational programmes (2007-2013) are going ahead in full steam, the EU institutions are already taking first steps in preparing the groundwork for the reassessment of the Union's future budget framework for after 2013. In December 2005, the European Council had agreed that a comprehensive reassessment of the Union's financial framework would have to be undertaken. In the coming months, the European Commission will prepare for this reassessment, which will culminate in a formal report to the heads of government in 2008/2009. This will also include a review of the future of EU rural development policy within the framework of the Common Agricultural Policy and of the regional policy.

A key step will be the presentation of the 4th Cohesion report by the European Commission in May 2007 as well as the adoption of the 'EU Territorial Agenda' under the German Presidency at the Leipzig Ministerial Meeting in May 2007¹. For local and regional government, and the CEMR as their European umbrella organisation, it will be important to participate in the debate and to formulate a comprehensive policy position. In this context, CEMR is organising this conference to discuss the contribution that rural communities can make to the development of a competitive and cohesive Europe.

The conference will provide a platform to draw attention to the challenges and future trends for rural communities in Europe. Academic experts, politicians, practitioners and EU officials will explore the ever-widening diversity of rural communities and illustrate the key transformations local authorities have to react to in order to be successful in the future. The conference aims to contribute to a positive appreciation of the important role of rural communities for the future of the EU, looking at the opportunities and critical success factors for building competitive rural communities.

Who should attend?

The conference aims to address representatives from local and regional government; politicians as well as experts/ officers who deal with rural development policies at regional and local level. Experts from European and national institutions or organisations are also welcome.

Brussels, October 2006

Jeremy Smith
Secretary General
CEMR

¹The EU Territorial Agenda is prepared through informal intergovernmental cooperation and seeks to align the Lisbon objectives of growth and competitiveness more closely to the EU's spatial development perspective. It will describe the current state of affairs, set policy priorities and key future actions for a polycentric, balanced development of the EU territory. Six priorities are agreed: agglomerations, urban networks and metropolitan regions in a polycentric pattern of development; strong urban-rural partnerships and a sufficient level of services of general interest for balanced territorial development; transnational clusters of competitive and innovative activities; trans-European ICT, transport and energy networks; promote trans-European risk management; strengthen trans-European ecological structures and cultural resources.
